

Symposium on Global Health and the Social Sciences
November 9 and 10, 2017
Kenmore Room, One Silber Way
Boston University

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9

Introductions and Brief Opening Remarks

Joseph Harris, Boston University (Symposium convener)

Anthony Janetos, Pardee Center, Boston University (Symposium host)

Lynn Morgan, Mount Holyoke College (on anthropology and global health)

Evan Lieberman, Massachusetts Institute of Technology (on political science and global health)

Jason Beckfield, Harvard University (on sociology and global health)

Panel 1: Global Health Governance

Andrew Lakoff, University of Southern California (sociology/anthropology)

Jeremy Shiffman, American University (political science)

Shiri Noy, University of Wyoming (sociology)

Panel 2: Reproductive Health and Human Rights

Claire Wendland, University of Wisconsin (anthropology)

Christina Ewig, University of Minnesota (political science)

Siri Suh, University of Minnesota (sociology)

Panel 3: Universalism

Salmaan Keshavjee, Harvard School of Public Health (anthropology)

Joe Wong, University of Toronto (political science)

Joe Harris, Boston University (sociology)

Summary Discussion of First Day

Susan Bell, Drexel University

Melani Cammett, Harvard University

Jim McGuire, Wesleyan University

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10

Panel 4: Infectious Disease

Adia Benton, Northwestern University (anthropology)

Prerna Singh, Brown University (political science)

Claire Decoteau, University of Illinois-Chicago (sociology)

Panel 5: Access to Pharmaceuticals

JT Crane, University of Washington-Bothell (anthropology)

Michael Reich, Harvard University (political science)

Nitsan Chorev, Brown University (sociology)

Veronika Wirtz, Boston University (global health)

Concluding Remarks and Next Steps

Susan Bell, Drexel University

Melani Cammett, Harvard University

Jim McGuire, Wesleyan University