Part of the Oxford Handbooks series in Political Science and International Relations. Four years in the making, with fifty chapters by some of the world’s leading specialists and practitioners, and nearly a thousand pages, the OHMD is the most ambitious publishing venture in diplomatic studies in any language today, and widely used in MFAs and Diplomatic Academies. It has triggered considerable international interest, leading to a dozen launches in ten countries and four continents: Canberra, Australia (Australian National University, 30 April); Tokyo, Japan (United Nations University, 2 May); Washington DC, USA ( American University, 4 June); Berlin, Germany (Institute for Development Studies, 12 June); London, UK (London School of Economics and Political Science, 17 June); Lund, Sweden (ACUNS, 19 June); Stockholm, Sweden (Swedish Institute of International Affairs, 20 June); Brussels, Belgium (European External Service, EU, 21 June); Singapore (National University of Singapore, 24 June); New York City, USA (Americas Society, 26 June); Mexico City, Mexico (Ministry of Foreign Affairs, 22 July); Buenos Aires, Argentina (Argentine Council on Foreign Relations, CARL, 26 August). Two serving foreign ministers (Mexico and Singapore) and three former foreign ministers (Argentina and Canada) have been among the presenters of the book in these launches.

Fixing Haiti: MINUSTAH and Beyond (with Andrew S. Thompson). Tokyo: United Nations University Press, 2011. One of the very first books to come out after Haiti's 2010 earthquake, Fixing Haiti elicited much interest, leading to nine launches in five countries, including in Washington DC, Miami, Ottawa, Montreal and Rio de Janeiro, being presented by personalities such as former Canadian GG Michaëlle Jean and former Haitian Prime Minister Gerard Latortue.
