Led symposium presentation at the annual meeting of the Society for Social Work Research (SSWR), January 11-15, Washington, D.C.

The purpose of the symposium was to describe results of four research projects in large urban centers, two in the U.S. and two in Chile, that have increased our understandings of neighborhood influences on youth and adult health, mental health, and substance use behaviors. We also describe how this information has been utilized by city and governmental officials to inform policies aimed at improving services. The 4 projects were:

- Neighborhood Characteristics and Adolescents' Outcomes: A Study of the Built Environment In Santiago, Chile;
- Assessing Neighborhoods' Physical and Social Environments: Experiences From the Detroit Neighborhood Health Study;
- Ethnographic Mapping of Minority and Non-Minority Youth Sexual Spaces In Detroit;
- Defining Neighborhoods Through Residents' Perceptions: A Qualitative Approach
